Palace: No cut in VAT on oil

Finance dep't to reduce tariff on imported petroleum products

By Nibela V. Reyes and Christine G. Arellano

MANILA—YESTERDAY SAID IT COULD NOT suspend the 12-percent expanded value-added tax (VAT) on oil and other petroleum products but it has come up with a new tariff reduction scheme that will mitigate the impact of soaring world crude prices.

Finance Secretary Alaguirra said the new tariff reduction scheme will be implemented starting February, which could result in a 10 to 15 percent price cut for oil.

companies will enforce the tariff reduction scheme. The government's refusal to suspend the VAT on oil and other petroleum products has been a major concern of the Department of Energy (DOE), National Economic and Development Authority (NEDA), Department of Trade and Industry (DTI), and Bureau of Customs (BOC).

No revenue loss

Reyes said the government would not see a revenue loss for the first six months of the scheme to determine the applicable tariff rate.

But Reyes also explained that since oil prices have risen, the tariff would be brought back to 5 percent.

The formula used for determining the tariff rate is one that will result in a revenue loss for the government. That is because the last prevailing price for oil was $100 a barrel.

Reyes said the DOE was not sure if the VAT on oil would be reduced to 12 percent.

oil requirements, making it vulnerable to price fluctuations.

President Arroyo has already rejected the proposed suspension of the VAT, the counterpart of the administration's revenue program, saying that would be counterproductive to the government's efforts to protect the country's foreign exchange.

"We must do it with prudence. It is not for the government to be a price taker," he said.

A legislative measure would be needed for the President to suspend any law, said Arroyo.

In a memorandum, Arroyo said a government on the 12 percent VAT on oil and other petroleum products is legally onerous to the President.

The Constitution, he said, requires the President to ensure that the VAT on oil and other petroleum products is not reduced. "It also said a Supreme Court ruling that said the President's duty is to ensure that the VAT on oil and other petroleum products is not reduced."

"If the President orders the suspension of the VAT on oil and other petroleum products, it would be a violation of the Constitution," he said.

First Golden Globe goes to Blanchett for 'I'm Not There'

BYSELF HILLS, CALIF.—The Golden Globe of the night went to Gwyneth Paltrow for her supporting role in "I'm Not There," and that pretty much said it all about the awards ceremony that was staged last night at the Beverly Hills Hotel.

The Australian actress arrived late, but she was not alone. Paltrow was joined by her husband, Chris, and their two children, as well as her mother, Bette Midler, and her father, Bruce Paltrow.

Her red carpet, no tippy toes and no big wigs. "Awww," said the host with a smile, "you're just being real."

The actress' nomination in the musical drama, which she produced, was a surprise. She had been nominated for Best Actress in 2006 for her role in "The Day After Tomorrow."

"I'm not there" is a biographical film about the life of Bob Dylan. Paltrow plays the role of Joan Baez, who was a close friend of the singer.

CEBU CITY—The Land Transportation Office (LTO) in Central Visayas has revamped its divisions and allegations of a "grand collusion" between smugglers and agency officials.

It was reported that LTO regional offices in Cebu and Iloilo have been revamped.

But the revamped offices in the region are not yet operational. The LTO regional office in Cebu is still under construction.

The LTO regional office has been under construction by the Department of Transportation and Communications (DOTr) following allegations of irregularities in the region's operations.

The Transportation Anti-Smuggling Group (TAGS) has also alleged that the LTO regional office in Cebu was involved in smuggling. TAGS chief Constable Enriquez said the LTO regional office in Cebu was involved in smuggling.

Issue of violence by immigrants jolts Germany

WUTLARS, GERMANY—A BRIEF outburst of violence has broken out between the two major parties here, one violent and the other peaceful, with the peaceful leadership and the violent side backing down.

Chancellor Angela Merkel has found herself scolding the clerics, priests and bishops, who have been violent against the peaceful leadership and the violent side backing down.

The movement began in late December, when a 20-year-old Turkish and a 17-year-old Greek were videotaped separately beating a 76-year-old retiree in the Munich subway. The protesters' goal was to force the police to take action against the attack, which shocked the nation. The police barely took action, pointing out that the attack was not a crime, and that the police had no jurisdiction over the attack.

Richard Koch, a Christian Democrat and the president in the state of Hesse, wrote to Frankfurt, which is the state capital, asking for an opportunity to push for tougher penalties for juvenile immigrants who commit crimes. There is a state and Lower Saxony go to the polls on Jan. 27 in closely watched races for their state parliaments, with Hesseburg following in February.

At an election rally here on Monday, Koch gave the leaders choice once when he issued in his theme of law and order. "Anyone who violates the law in this country will experience the maximum resistance of the entire state," he said. "I will not let this happen." He pointed out that the state is a Christian state.

The question for Koch on Election Day will be how important the state's role in the country will be. The Social Democrats are campaigning on both sides of the national movement, also a popular and highly emotional issue.

At stake in the election is control of the three state governments, as well as their vote in the upper house of the federal parliament. But beyond the election in political circles, the question of long-term damage to the country's holding of respect for its newcomers, many of whom come from here but are still viewed as unstable society's main threat.

Others argue that the problem lies in the disproportionately high crime rates of immigrants, and that German police are likely to commit crimes as poor blacks or Hispanics. Statistics show that juvenile crime rates fell in 2007 from the prior year, but the decline has been more than offset by the rise in crime.

Ring rivals cross paths

Trash talk expected as Pacquiao meets Marquez again

By Ray Linares

THEY LAST MET AFTER THE BING NUNOY fight just a year ago and fought in a highly controversial decision in Las Vegas.

On Tuesday (Wednesday in Manila), boxing rivals Manny Pacquiao and Juan Manuel Marquez will cross paths—and their odds will still seem even—again during the pre-main-event for their much-anticipated rematch at Beverly Hills Hotel-Palms Room in California.

The Filipino slug was left last night in Los Angeles with broken fingers, fractured ribs and a concussion. But he has the hardware to prove he is the best pound-for-pound fighter in the world.

"The new boy's looking mighty," boxing promoter and Pacquiao coach trainer Bob "Sugar" Dela Cruz said in a press conference. "He has changed a lot for the better."

Delacruz, who began his preparation for Pacquiao-Marquez II last week at his home town of Cebu, Samar City, will continue his training at the MGM Grand Hotel in Las Vegas under the supervision of Freddie Roach.

The Mexican warrior, who will be making his World Boxing Council super featherweight crown, went into high-altitude training even before Christmas to make sure that he would be at the best of his fitness for the March 15 feature at the MGM City Hotel and Casino in Las Vegas.

To drink New Age, Pacquiao dressed Marquez like in the first round but, looking for an injured hand and a damaged leg, had no visible action.

Through the seven, two rounds later Pacquiao would have been victorious in a scoring round by a judge in the first round. Marquez took a cut in the eye in the eighth round.

"They have taken different routes with the degree of success—Marquez winning the title and Pacquiao pushing the big man—by a decision. Both came in to win a really big day of the big event in the world."

For that reason alone, the two participants are sure to engage in the dramatic rematch in the ring.
